As the responsible body.

PTMC UK and the companies connected with it, respect the privacy of each person who visits our websites. We always process your data in accordance with statutory provisions, in particular with the Remote Services Data Protection Act and the Federal Data Protection Act.

The present privacy statement explains what information PTMC UK collects and stores, and what further use is made of such data. This declaration will also inform you of how you can check the accuracy of the personal data which we store about you and how you can delete, block or update in our database.

Collection of personal data

When you visit the website, no personal data (such as name, address, telephone number, email addresses or credit card details) will be for you, except for information freely provided by you or information automatically obtained by the cookies (see further below).

Some of our website invites the visitor to indicate personal data such as name, email or postal address. These include websites with offers to send circulars and information sheets ("Newsletter").

Use of personal data

PTMC UK stores your personal data and uses it to contact you, for example to communicate with you in response to your questions or to send you product or promotional material including emails and text messages (e.g SMS) or other information material from PTMC UK.

PTMC UK will not, without your express consent, release your personal data to third parties, outside PTMC UK. External service providers who process data on instructions for us will be subject to a strict contractual obligation in the spirit of the Federal Data Protection Act and should therefore not be regarded as third parties for the purposes of data protection law. These service providers will in particular be prohibited from using your data for any other purposes than those originally agreed.

Your rights

It is up to you how PTMC UK should handle data. You can at any time prohibit the use of your personal data, obtain information about the personal data stored on you or a copy of it, correct your personal data or have it updated, blocked or deleted. Please contact the competent body for this, which is indicated at the end of this declaration.

Information which we can automatically place on your computer (“Cookies”)

If you visit our website, we can place information on your computer. This takes place in the form of a so – called “cookie” or a similar file, which helps us in various ways. For example, “Cookies” help us to compose a website or product information which complies better with your interests or preferences. Most Internet browsers can delete the “Cookies” from the hard disc or block them or contain a warning before a “Cookie” is downloaded. Further information about these functions will be provided in the system settings on your browser.

PTMC UK will only use such automatically stored information with your previous consent in connection with the personal data which you have previously made available to us, (e.g on registration) on our website.

Data security, external links

PTMC UK gives an undertaking to ensure secure treatment of your personal data to take appropriate precautionary measures to protect it against loss, abuse or falsification.

PTMC UK is not liable for the contents of other suppliers who can be reached through the hyperlinks on our website. Many links on our websites refer to contents which are not stored on our own servers. External contents have been checked for accuracy and criminal liability when the links were set up. Nevertheless, the possibility cannot be ruled out that contents from suppliers will be subsequently changed. PTMC UK is not required to keep this under constant monitoring and therefore rejects any liability.
